THE NAME AND FAMILY OF RED(D)ING.

The name of Reading, Redding, or Reding is said to have been derived from the residence of its first bearers at the market-town of Readin, in Berkshire, England. It is found on the ancient records in the various forms of Redynge, Reddinge, Redinge, Readinge, Redying, Reeding, Riddin, Ridding, Redin, Readding, Reding, Redding, Reading, and others, of which the last three are the forms most generally accepted in America today.

Families of this name were to be found at early dates in the English counties of Berkshire, Norfolk, Suffolk, Hereford, Kent, Middlesex, Surrey, Worcester, Warwick, Oxford, Stafford, and London and were, for the most part, of the landed gentry and yeomanry of Great Britain.

Among the earliest records of the family in England were those of Thomas de Reding of Herefordshire in 1295, Henry de Reding of County Norfolk about 1303, Robert de Redin of County Suffolk about the same time, Robert de Reading of Westminster prior to 1335 and his brother John de Redynge of London about 1337(these two men are believed to have been the sons of one William Redynge of London and the brothers of another William), John de Reding of County Norfolk in 1324, Johannes de Redynge of Herefordshire in 1340, Henry de Redymg of Berkshire about 1372, William Redyng of Warwickshire in the early fifteenth century, John and Hugh Redinge of County Surrey in the latter fifteenth century, Henry Reading of Oxford about 1503, John Reading of Oxford about 1565, and John Readinge of Middlesex County in 1572.

In the seventeenth century records are found of John Readinge of Buckinghamshire in 1604; Thomas Reading of Herefordshire, who had a son named John and probably another named Thomas; Symond Reading of London in 1631; Robert and William Reading of Ireland in 1638; Richard Redding of Worcestershire about the middle of the century; John Reading of County Kent, who was the father of a son named Thomas; and William Reading of Staffordshire, who had a son of the same name.

It is not definitely known, however, from which of the many members of the family in England the first emigrants of the name to America were descended, but it is generally believed that all of the Readings and Red(d)ings were of common ancestry at a remote period.

The first of the name in America are believed to have been the brothers Miles and Joseph Red(d)ing or Reading, who are believed to have come to America in the fleet with Winthrop in 1630 and settled at Boston, Mass. Joseph removed to Cambridge, Mass., before 1633 and was later, with his wife Elisabeth and a daughter of the same name, at Ipswich; and Miles is said to have owned property at Billerica in 1665. Unfortunately, no definite record has been found of his immediate family and descendants.

Sometime before 1630 one Thaddeus Reading or Red(d)ing was living at Lynn, Mass. By his wife Elisabeth he was the father of Hannah and Sarah (twins, of whom the first died young), another Hannah, John, Abigail, and possibly others. He later resided at Marblehead, where he may have died shortly after 1674.

About 1684, if not before, one John Reading came from London, England, to Gloucester County, N.J., and was possibly accompanied by a brother named Daniel, although some authorities claim that this Daniel was his father. By his wife Elizabeth the emigrant John was the father of John and Elsie, as well as possibly of others, and of these children, John is said to have been Governor of New Jersey and to have had issue by his wife Mary Ryerson of John, Ann, George, Daniel, Joseph, Elizabeth, Richard, Thomas, Mary, Sarah, and Samuel.

Others of the name who came to America in the seventeenth century but left few records of their immediate families and descendants were Robert Reddinge of Virginia in 1640; John Reading of Virginia in 1653; Thomas Reading or Reding of Saco.Me., in 1653; Richard Redding of Virginia in 1656; and John Redding or Reading of Sandwich, who was married in 1673 to Mary Bassett.

One Joseph Redding was living at Middleborough, Mass., in the early eighteenth century and by his first wife, whose name is not known, he was the father of, among others, a son named Thomas, who is believed to have been the same as the Thomas who made his home at Gilsum, N.H., in the latter half of that century. It is possible, however, that this Joseph he was a descendant of one of the earlier New England lines.

One Ebenezer Redding is said to have resided at Freetown before 1778 and later to have made his home at Oxford, Mass. By his wife Abigail Atwood he was the father of Ebenezer, Rachel, Jospeh, Otis, Hannah, Selah, and Samuel, but it is possible that he also was descended from one of the before mentioned emigrants.

The descendants of these and possibly of other branches of the family in America have spread to practically every State of the Union and have aided as much in the growth of the country as their ancestors aided in the founding of the nation. They have been noted for their energy, industry, integrity, piety, perseverance, fortitude, patience, resourcefulness, initiative, courage, and leadership.

Among those of the name who fought as officers in the War of the Revolution were Lieutenant John, Captain Samuel, and Captain Thomas Reading of New Jersey; Ensign William and Captain Zebedee of Massachusetts; and numerous others.

Thomas, Robert, John, Henry, Joseph, Richard, Samuel, and William are some of the Christian names most highly favored by the family for its male members.

One of the most ancient and frequently recurrent of the numerous coats-of-arms of the English family of Reading or Red(d)-ing is that described as follows:

Arms.--"Argent, three boars' heads erased (another, couped) sable."

Crest.--"A griffin sejant, holding in the dexter paw a garland of laurel, all proper."

(Arms taken from Burke's "General Armory", 1884.)

Daybook of America

By CLARK KINNAIRD

No. 9 in a series. JANUARY 1770, Daniel Boone was fostering a distinctly American heroic literature. He was wintering in what Wyandotte Indians called Kaintuckee ("Long prairies"). He led a group that had come from the Yadkin Valley in North Carolina the summer of 1769: his brother-in-law, John Stuart, John Finley, and three others. They entered via Cumberland Gap, blazed a trail to the river that became the Kentucky in maps, explored the valley as potential for settlement, collected furs, underwent capture by Indians and escape.

Boone returned with a company of Carolinians to settle what a land company's promoters named "Transylvania." He erected a fort and trading post that was to become famous for Indian and Revolutionary War heroism, thanks to John Finley.

To stimulate further settler interest in region at the Revolution's end, Finley published, in 1784, The Discovery of . . . Kentucky, with a biography of Boone as an appendix. It gained wide circulation in Europe. Lord Byron was inspired by it to write poetry which made Boone a world celebrity, and an overshadowing figure among the American pioneers. (More here about Boone later.)

Mr. and Mrs. Elkanah Redding and others came from North Carolinia to Wells Co. the same day that the first train arrived in Bluffton from Ft. Wayne on the Lake Erie and Western Rail Road which was Nov. 10. 1869.

Ambroze Redding P. 42. Jonah[illegible] and Nancy P. 41. with their children 1 Randol, 2 George and Almeda 3. P. 37 came to Indiana, from Yadkin Co. North Carolinia in 1833. with Ambroze Day, with team and wagon It took seven (7) weeks to make the trip, and never crossed a bridge in all the trip; But at Cincinnati Ohio they used a ferry-boat to cross the Ohio river, and one of their cows broke loose and jumped overboard, and when she came up one of the men caught the cow by the horns and pulled the cow the rest of way across the river.
